Domestic and Sexual Violence 2008 Report

Domestic and sexual violence are two of the fastest growing and most serious violent crimes in Utah. Over the past few years the frequency and intensity of this violence and abuse has increased. Countless victims and survivors of domestic and sexual violence are enduring more life threatening situations than those in years past. Domestic violence and rape and sexual assault encompass all races, ethnic groups, educational levels, social and economic classes, religions, gender and physical and mental abilities. For many people, these crimes are hidden and rarely discussed in public. Many individuals do not recognize this violence as a public health issue that significantly impacts communities, families, and individuals. It is quiet in our conversations and that secret speaks volumes for the continuation of domestic and sexual violence.

Domestic violence is characterized as a systematic pattern of physical, sexual, verbal, emotional, and psychological abuse, which is predominantly directed by men against women. Rather than a series of independent acts or events, it is most often part of a process in which the perpetrator maintains control and domination over the victim.

In 2006, a second statewide domestic violence incidence and prevalence survey was conducted. The survey indicated that 1 in 4 women declared they had either been physically, emotionally, psychologically, sexually or verbally abused. We learned from this data that an estimated 187,201 women in Utah suffer from this abuse.

Utah’s response to domestic violence is a multi-disciplinary active approach. Assisting in the movement to end domestic violence is the Governor’s Child and Family Cabinet Council and the Utah Domestic Violence Council. The philosophy of the Governor’s Child and Family Cabinet Council is that domestic violence can be stopped at the local community level with the support of grassroots agencies to create a coordinated statewide effort. The Utah Domestic Violence Council believes that every person in Utah has the right to live in a violence free environment, and that developing a statewide presence to drive domestic violence response activities will increase coordination at the State level, and strengthen effectiveness at the local community level.

The Utah Domestic Violence Council is Utah’s domestic violence coalition and supports 22 local coalitions or coordinating councils on domestic violence, which covers every county in the state. Prevention and intervention services include 16 shelter programs and 40 domestic violence victim advocate programs and 59-licensed domestic violence treatment providers across the state.

Sexual violence is characterized as any time a person is forced, coerced, and/or manipulated into any attempted or completed unwanted sexual contact. Victims of sexual violence can experience physical and psychological health issues. Physical injuries can include bruises, broken bones, chronic pelvic pain, and/or back pain. Sexual violence can not only result in transmission of sexual infection, and/or unwanted pregnancy, it can also result in emotional harm. A victim of sexual violence can experience Post-traumatic Stress Disorder, which can include symptoms of depression, guilt, embarrassment, flashbacks and emotional detachment.

According to the “Rape in Utah” report released by the Utah Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice, 1 in 3 women will experience some form of sexual violence during their lifetime. With those startling numbers it was important that Utah established the Governor’s Sexual Violence Council. The Council is responsible for prioritizing and moving forward on issues in regards to sexual violence. The Utah Department of Health, Violence and Injury Prevention Program coordinates a Federal grant, funded by the Center of Disease Control, which distributes monies to statewide programs that offer primary prevention services. Ten of the 12 rape prevention programs throughout the state are currently receiving funding from this grant.

The authors of this report are confident the information contained herein will further organize and revitalize the collaborative effort to end domestic violence in Utah.
In Utah, fifteen of the sixteen domestic violence shelters reported services to victims and survivors. Numbers were collected for the time period from 7/1/2006 to 6/30/2007.

* An allegation is a unique combination of type of abuse, victims and perpetrator. (e.g. A case with one victims and two perpetrators would have two allegations.

NOTE: Since only 56 of the reporting agencies submit IBR data, IBR statistics reflect only crimes reported by those jurisdictions. They do not reflect statewide data.

Growing numbers of Utah law enforcement agencies are participating in the Incident Based Reporting (IBR) program. As more agencies submit IBR data, it will become a powerful tool, providing more detailed, meaningful, and timely information about criminal activities. IBR statistics reflect only crimes reported by the jurisdictions participating. The statistics presented on these two pages are only as accurate as the data provided by the local law enforcement agencies. This report reflects crime in Utah as far as it is completely and accurately reported by local law enforcement agencies to the Utah Bureau of Criminal Identification. In the chart below weapons used multiple times during one incidence are only counted once.

A protective order is an order issued by the court to give victims of domestic violence protection. Protective orders prevent the abuser from contacting, threatening, or entering onto the property of the victim. An ex-parte protective order can be issued the day a victim requests it, without the abuser being present. Once the abuser is given a copy of the order, it is effective until a court hearing is held, where the abuser is invited to be present. After a court hearing, the court can issue a protective order, which includes criminal enforceable provisions that protect the victim for 2 years. Conditions of the orders are specified in Utah code, Cohabitant Abuse Act 30-6-1-14. In 2007, 3,993 ex-parte orders and 1,843 protective orders were issued.

Stalking is generally described as a pattern or course of conduct directed at or towards a specific person that places a reasonable person as well as that specific person in fear of bodily injury or suffer emotional distress. The National Center for Victims of Crime has published the following:

- One out of every twelve women in the United States (8.2 million) and one out of every forty-five men in the United States (2 million) has been stalked at some point in their lives.

- It is estimated that 1.4 million people are stalked annually.

- Seventy six percent of women killed by their intimate partner were stalked by these partners before they were murdered.

- Eighty five percent of the women and 70% of the men who were stalked were stalked by someone they knew.

The Utah Domestic Violence Council compiles and continually updates information on domestic violence related deaths from public sources statewide. Case specific information must demonstrate a correlation between domestic violence and the death of the individual as demonstrated by corroborating public information. From public information available, each listed death shows domestic violence between cohabitants, persons in dating relationships, and family members not defined within the cohabitant statute. In 2007, 18 individuals were murdered in domestic violence related homicides or suicides. Forty-four percent of the homicides were committed by firearms (8). A total of five children were present at two of the below listed deaths. This information is unofficial and may not reflect that of other similar reports published by other agencies.

The Cohabitant Abuse Act defines a “Cohabitant as an emancipated person who is 16 years of age or older who: a) is or was a spouse of the other party; b) is or was living as if a spouse of the other party c) is related by blood or marriage to the other party; d) has one or more children in common with the other party; e) is the biological parent of the other party’s unborn child; f) resides or has resided in the same residence as the other party.” Because much research on each case is necessary to determine which domestic homicides were committed by a cohabitant, this data will, by necessity, narrowly define a domestic violence homicide in which the victim is a member of the family, the wife, ex-wife, common-law wife, girl friend, ex-girl friend, boy friend, ex-boy friend, husband, or ex-husband.

Domestic Violence Victim Homicides 2007

The Utah Domestic Violence Council compiles information on domestic violence related deaths from public sources statewide. To be listed, case specific information must demonstrate a correlation between domestic violence and the death of the victim as demonstrated by corroborating public information. These troubling statistics document, in summary form, the broad scope and tragic impact of domestic violence in Utah. The following data is unofficial and gathered from media accounts. It may not reflect the same information of other similar reports published by other agencies. The following 9 individual’s were murdered by someone they knew.

The Percentage of Women Who Delivered a Live Birth During 2004-2006 Who Reported Abuse During Pregnancy, By Type -Utah PRAMS

Sexual Abuse includes women who answered yes to this statement: your husband or partner forced you to take part in any sexual activity when you did not want to (including touch that made you uncomfortable).

Emotional Abuse includes women who said yes to any of the following statements: A) Your husband or partner threatened you or made you feel unsafe in some way. B) You were frightened for the safety of yourself or your family because of the anger or threats of your husband or partner. C) Your husband or partner tried to control your daily activities, for example controlling who you could talk to or where you could go.

Physical Abuse includes women who said yes to either question: A) During your most recent pregnancy, did an ex-husband or ex-partner push, hit, slap, kick, choke, or physically hurt you in any other way? B) During your most recent pregnancy, were you physically hurt in any way by your husband or partner?
A sex abuse allegation may include any general allegation of inappropriate sexual behavior. Not all referrals may be accepted after they are telephoned into Child Protective Services. This may be due to a number of reasons, including something as simple as not having enough information available to warrant an investigation.

When a case is supported, it means that the case meets the requirement for sexual abuse or exploitation. These cases may or may not be charged in a civil court. If a case is documented as unable to complete an investigation it may be that the identified victim is not available or nonverbal. Without merit indicated that there was no possibility that the alleged perpetrator was able to have committed the offence, (he or she was out of the state at the time of the charge etc).

Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner

Salt Lake Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners, with support from the STOP Violence Against Women Act funds has trained over 200 nurses in 18 counties in the state over the last 6 years. Twelve counties are served by SANE programs and an additional 6 counties have trained SANEs providing care.

The purpose of the sexual assault nurse examination is to collect forensic evidence, provide timely and compassionate care for a sexual assault victim, and to provide preventative treatment for STI's and pregnancy. The exam will be given only after any other urgent medical concerns are treated.

Crime Victim Reparations provided payment for 1,049 forensic examinations in FY 2007.

Utah Sexual Violence Crisis and Information Line

Calendar Year 2007

This year the sexual violence information line experienced its highest call volume since 2002. For more information on sexual violence, and to access resources please call the rape and sexual violence crisis and information line at 1-800-421-1100.
The UCR Program counts one offense for each female victim of a forcible rape, attempted forcible rape, or assault with intent to rape, regardless of the victim’s age. A rape by force involving a female victim and a familial offender is counted as a forcible rape not an act of incest. In Utah, one rape is reported every 9.6 hours.

Rape is the only category of violent crime in which Utah exceeds the national average:

2005 Female Rape Incidence
Utah - 930 reported rapes
74.21 per 100,000 females

U.S. - 94,347 reported rapes
62.68 per 100,000 females

2006 Female Rape Incidence
Utah - 862 reported rapes
67.42 per 100,000 females

U.S. - 92,455 reported rapes
60.87 per 100,000 females

- Only 9.8% of victims identified by the survey had reported the assault to police
- Survey findings indicate that nearly 1 in 3 women will experience some form of sexual violence in her lifetime
- 86.2% experienced their first sexual assault before their 18th birthday
- 83% of completed rapes were committed by someone known to the victim

Victims are less likely to report to police if the perpetrator is someone they know:

- When the offender was a friend or acquaintance 61% of completed rapes and 82% of sexual assaults were not reported to police.
- When the offender was a stranger, 54% of completed rapes and 34% of sexual assaults were not reported to police.

Forcible rape, as defined in the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program, is the carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will. Assaults and attempts to commit rape by force or threat of force are also included; however, statutory rape (without force) and other sex offenses are excluded. The total number of rape incident that took place in 2006 were 881.

Statewide Domestic and Sexual Violence Programs

* Source: Utah Domestic Violence Council

The following two pages contain maps with symbols representing the domestic and sexual violence programs available statewide as of February 2007. Programs that serve the entire state but have one central location are listed separately. If the symbols are within more than one county barrier then the program represented is shared between those counties. The thick, black, dashed lines on the main map represent the separation of the five regions within Utah.

* Licensed DV Treatment Providers: People in all counties have treatment available to them. Many of the DCFS treatment provider programs cover more than one county.

* Residents of those counties showing little or no services access the services available in the surrounding counties.

* Transitional Housing: Although there are only seven domestic violence specific transitional housing programs in the state of Utah many counties have low income and/or homeless housing projects that can be used as transitional housing by survivors. When applying for housing in these projects DV survivors usually are subject to the same application process as other hopeful residents, however there are a specific number of units set aside for survivors in a few counties. Also available in some counties are funds from HUD and even some available through the local shelter for very limited assistance with transitional housing.
