Executive Summary

This report provides an overview of the occurrence and ramifications of domestic and sexual violence in the state of Utah. The information included in this report was made possible with the collaboration and support of multiple agencies, including:

Administrative Office of the Courts

Utah Children's Justice Centers

Utah Coalition Against Sexual Assault

Utah Commission on Criminal and Juvenile Justice

Utah Department of Health, Violence and Injury Prevention Program

Utah Department of Human Services, Division of Child and Family Services

Utah Domestic Violence Coalition

Utah Office for Victims of Crime

Domestic and sexual violence are two of the most serious violent crimes in Utah. Countless victims and survivors of domestic and sexual violence are enduring life threatening situations and suffer impacts which seriously reduce their quality of life. Domestic violence and rape and sexual assault affect all races, ethnic groups, educational levels, social and economic classes, religions, gender and physical and intellectual abilities. For many people, these crimes are hidden and rarely discussed in public. Many individuals will not recognize this violence as a public health issue that significantly impacts communities, families, and individuals. It is hardly mentioned in our conversations and that silence contributes to the continuation of domestic and sexual violence.

Domestic violence is characterized as a systematic pattern of physical, sexual, verbal, emotional, and psychological abuse. This pattern of abuse may also include financial and spiritual abuse and threats of violence. Rather than a series of independent acts or events, it is most often part of a process in which the perpetrator maintains control and domination over the victim with whom he/she has a cohabitant or intimate relationship. Sexual violence is characterized as any time a person is forced, coerced, and/or manipulated into any attempted or completed unwanted sexual contact. Victims of sexual violence can experience physical and psychological health issues. Physical injuries can include bruises, broken bones, chronic pelvic pain, and/or back pain. Sexual violence can not only result in transmission of sexual infection, and/or unwanted pregnancy, it can also result in emotional harm. A victim of sexual violence may develop Post-traumatic Stress Disorder, or experience depression, guilt, anxiety, embarrassment, flashbacks, fear or emotional detachment that can continue long after the assault.

Executive Summary

Domestic Violence

During 2013, 2,862 women, men, and children were sheltered in 15 Utah domestic violence shelters. The total number of days individuals spent in domestic violence shelters was 98,717 days.

Dating Violence

Domestic and sexual violence do not just affect Utah adults; teens and children report violence and abuse at numbers consistent with national rates. The Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System (YRBSS) surveys 9th through 12th grade students every two years. In 2011, it was found that 11.8% of Utah high school student respondents reported that they were hit, slapped, or physically hurt on purpose by a boyfriend or girlfriend during the 12 months prior to the survey. That same year, 7.9% of high school student respondents reported that they had been physically forced to have sexual intercourse when they did not want to during the 12 months prior to the survey.

Child Abuse

In Utah, Children's Justice Centers (CJCs) provide children (17 years of age and younger) and their families with victim resources and referrals for support services, including medical services and therapy during abuse investigations. In (FY) 2013, 13,548 people received services through Utah's CJCs. That same year, 70.7% of the total 5,455 reported victimizations were child sexual abuse cases.

Sexual Violence

There were a total of 895 reported rapes during 2013. Multiple resources exist in Utah for rape prevention, advocacy, and response, including the Utah Coalition Against Sexual Assault (UCASA), which provided rape crisis advocacy training to 228 individuals in 2013.

Courts

Cohabitant abuse cases filings are a civil case type where a petition for a protective order is filed; a total of 4,642 cohabitant abuse cases were filed in 2013. In the same year, the number of temporary protective orders issued was a total of 3,806 orders.

Domestic Violence

Data Source: Division of Child and Family Services

Figure 1 shows the number of individuals who entered a domestic violence shelter. Men women and children are represented in the data since FY 2006. While women and children comprise the majority of individuals served, men are also served by victim service organizations and appear to be gaining access to these important services. Children and youth served by victim service providers, enter emergency shelter with an adult parent, and that parent is considered the primary client.

Data Source: Division of Child and Family Services

Figure 2 shows the total number of emergency shelter days provided to men, women and children in contracted victim service organizations throughout Utah in 2013. The number of days is calculated using the start and end dates of each episode for each person. The average number of days per episode has increased consistently since 2009; currently, the average length of emergency shelter stay is 34.5 days. This increase suggests that individuals entering emergency shelter have more complex needs, fewer resources, and higher risks associated with intimate partner violence. Victim service organizations have worked diligently to diversify the array of supportive services available to people in need, providing stability and safety to people earlier and directly in their communities. This model of early intervention, crisis outreach, and community based care is essential to ensure people are supported with the appropriate level of assistance and the very limited emergency shelter resources are prioritized to those individuals with the greatest need.

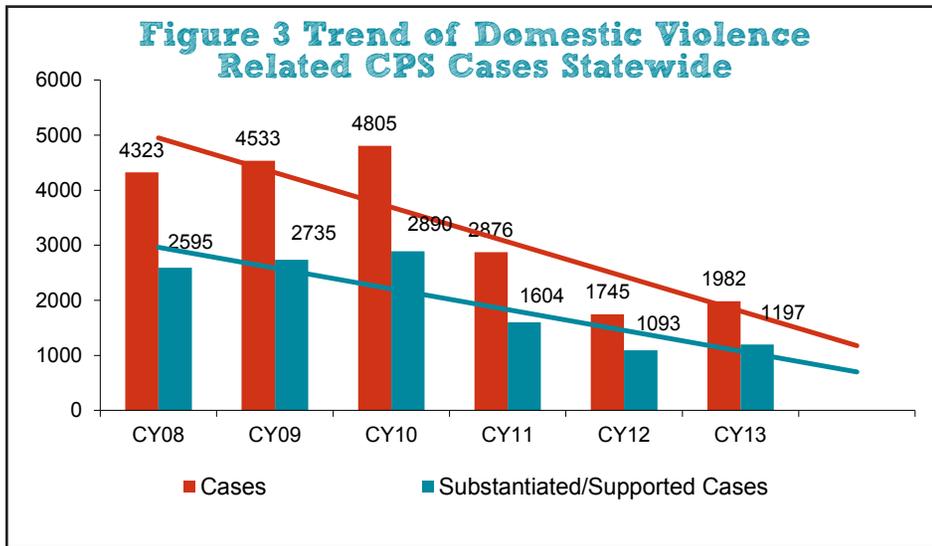

Table 1 shows the domestic violence shelter services throughout the state of Utah.

Domestic Violence

Data Source: Division of Child and Family Services

Data Source: Bureau of Criminal Identification

Child Protective Services (CPS) responds to calls from the community concerning potential abuse, neglect of dependency of children. CPS workers use the Safety-Decision Making Model to assess child safety. The model directs workers to assess three specific areas: 1-Threats of Harm, 2- Child Vulnerability and 3- Protective Capacity. Based on the information gathered as part of the assessment, a determination is made whether or not additional intervention is required to create safety. Interventions may include CPS workers providing educational intervention, referring to community services or resources, direct referral to treatment, DCFS In home services or, if the child cannot be maintained safely in the home, placement into protective custody. Figure 3 shows the way CPS may become involved with a family.

The Bureau of Criminal Identification (BCI) is mandated to collect and publish crime statistics. BCI publishes an annual report that contains data collected from law enforcement agencies. The data is reported to BCI in two formats, summary and incident based reporting (IBR). The summary data only represents the most serious offense reported in an incident, while IBR will represent all the offenses reported in an incident. Because IBR collects details about the offenses, victims, offenders, property and arrests involved in each crime incident, it is possible to analyze various aspects of the crime occurring in our society.

Not all law enforcement agencies in Utah report using the IBR format, therefore statistics based on IBR do not represent the entire population of Utah. Out of 142 total law enforcement agencies, 81 agencies submitted IBR data and 10 agencies did not submit data either to the summary or IBR programs. These data are compiled from the 2013 Preliminary Report and the data may change when the final report is published.

Incident Based Reporting Domestic Violence Analysis

Domestic Violence is not a specific offense in IBR reporting. Data is compiled by using the offense and the relationship between the victim and offender. Figure 4 shows the total number of incidents reported by IBR agencies in Utah committed by family members by year.

Domestic Violence

Table 2 shows the offenses reported by IBR agencies in 2013 by the type of victim, where a family or intimate relationship was indicated. The most common relationship reported is boyfriend or girlfriend (30%), followed by spouse (18%). If common-law spouses, ex-spouses, and homosexual relationships are added, intimate partners accounted for over half (53%) of the total offenses involving family members. IBR data also provide information on the types of injuries suffered by victims of domestic violence during the offenses listed in below in Table 2.

Table 3 shows data on injuries suffered during these incidents. Multiple injuries could be recorded for a single incident if multiple injuries occurred. The most likely outcome of these offenses was no injury (56%), followed by apparent minor injuries (41%).

Finally, IBR data can be used to analyze the types of weapons that are used in domestic violence incidents. Table 4 shows information on only those incidents where a weapon was used. Multiple weapons could be reported if more than one weapon was used. Personal weapons, which would include hands or feet, were the most commonly reported (87%).

Domestic Violence

Domestic Violence Fatality Review and Utah Violent Death Reporting System

The Utah Violent Death Reporting System (UTVDRS) is an incident-based system that collects detailed information from death certificates, medical examiner records, police reports, crime lab records, and supplemental homicide reports on all violent deaths in Utah. Homicides, suicides, deaths of undetermined intent, unintentional firearm-related deaths, and deaths due to legal intervention are all considered violent deaths for the purpose of the data collection.

An intimate partner violence module is included in UTVDRS to collect data specific to cases reviewed by the Domestic Violence Fatality Review Committee (DVFRC). The DVFRC has been in existence for more than nine years and currently is reviewing cases from 2010. The DVFRC meets regularly to provide a comprehensive review of domestic violence-related homicides and develop recommendations for future prevention efforts. The following are the DVFRC's domestic violence-related homicide and suicide definitions:

Domestic Violence-related Homicide

1. The victim is 18 years or older at the time of death;
2. The manner of death is designated as a homicide by the Office of the Medical Examiner or a suspect is charged with criminal homicide by law enforcement; and
3. The relationship of the victim and suspect can include:
 - a. Current or former intimate partner;
 - b. Cohabitants (roommates); or
 - c. Family members (including in-laws, stepparents, stepchildren, stepsiblings, current or former intimate partner family members, and foster parents or children).

Domestic Violence-related Suicide

1. The victim is 18 years or older at the time of death;
2. The manner of death is designated as a suicide by the Office of the Medical Examiner;
3. The incident includes violence or the threat of violence between:
 - a. Current or former intimate partners;
 - b. Cohabitants (roommates); or
 - c. Family members (including in-laws, stepparents, stepchildren, stepsiblings, current or former intimate partner family members, and foster parents or children); and
4. The incident includes one of the following circumstances:
 - a. Intimate partner problem;
 - b. Other relationship problem;
 - c. Perpetrator of interpersonal violence in the past month; or
 - d. Victim of interpersonal violence in the past month.

Domestic Violence

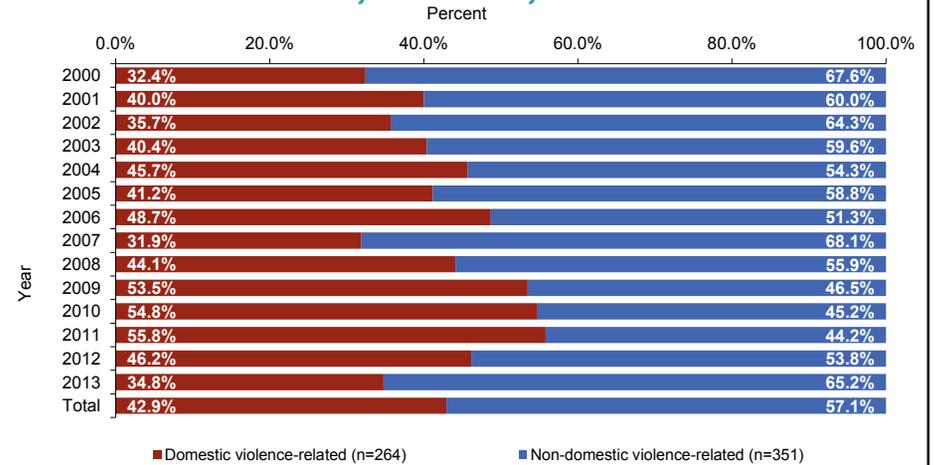

Figure 5 shows the percentage of adult domestic violence-related homicides among all adult homicides. Since 2000, domestic violence-related homicides accounted for approximately 42.9% of adult homicides. From 2000-2013, there were a total of 264 domestic violence-related homicides for an average of 19 deaths per year.

Utah Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System

The Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System (BRFSS) tracks health conditions and risk behaviors in the United States. The Utah BRFSS is conducted by the Office of Public Health Assessment at the Utah Department of Health. In 2013, a question related to intimate partner violence (IPV) was asked of females 18 years and older. An intimate partner included any current or former spouse, boyfriend, or girlfriend. Anyone the interviewee was dating, or romantically or sexually intimate with was also considered an intimate partner.

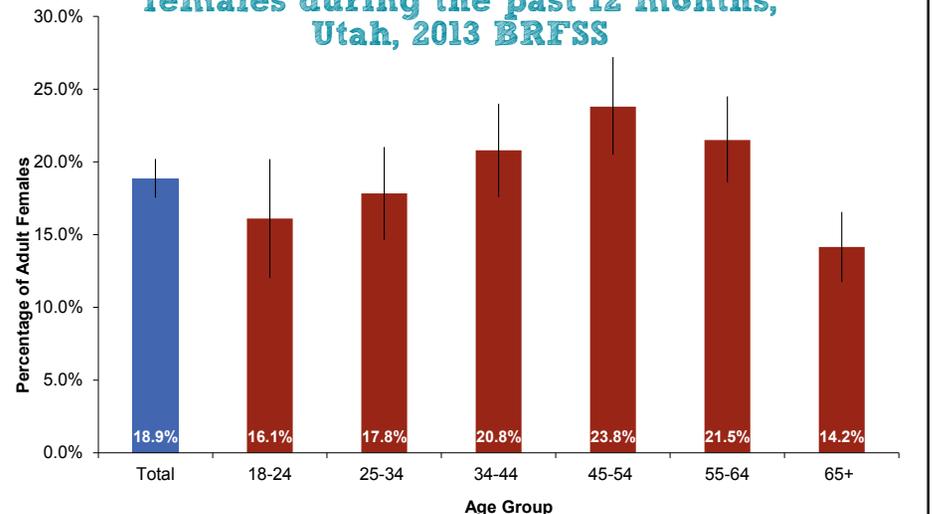

Data from the 2013 BRFSS indicate that 18.9% of females reported an intimate partner pushing, hitting, slapping, kicking, choking, or physically hurting them in any other way during the past 12 months. Overall, 2008 data indicated that 14.2% of females reported experiencing IPV in their lifetime. Figure 6 shows the percentage of adult females by age group. Females 45-54 years of age (23.8%) had a statistically higher reported prevalence of IPV in the past 12 months compared to the state IPV prevalence of 18.9%. Females 65 years and older had a statistically lower reported IPV prevalence in the past 12 months compared to the state IPV prevalence (14.2% and 18.9%, respectively).

Domestic Violence

"The purpose of the Utah Domestic Violence Coalition is to provide education, support and technical assistance to primary purpose domestic violence service providers in the state in order to establish and maintain shelter and supportive services for victims of domestic violence and their dependents.

The Coalition serves as an information clearinghouse, primary point of contact, and resource center on domestic violence for the State and supports the development of policies, protocols, and procedures to enhance domestic violence intervention and prevention in the State.

A primary purpose domestic violence service provider is one that operates a project of demonstrated effectiveness, carried out by a nonprofit, nongovernmental, private entity or a tribe or tribal organization, that has as its project's primary-purpose the operation of shelters for victims of domestic violence and their dependents; or provides counseling, advocacy, or self-help services to victims of domestic violence. These services are based on a community based survivor empowerment model.

Domestic Violence is also referred to as Intimate Partner Violence and it is widely recognised that sexual assault often occurs within domestically violent relationships and between intimate partners. It should be understood therefore that the majority of programs serving domestic violence victims in Utah are therefore dual programs also serving victims of sexual assault. Beyond shelter the dv/sa programs offer a range of trauma informed integrated services to promote healing and strengthen families.

The UDVC is also a direct service provider to some of the most marginalised communities in the state. Our Linkline provides 24/7 support to victims, friends, family and professionals encountering domestic violence; all calls are entirely confidential and support can be provided in multiple languages. In 2011/12 the DV Linkline served 4711 people and supported more than 1500 children with information and resources.

UDVC provided face to face training to over 900 local community members across the state and 228 individuals accessed our web based training in 2011/12. Trainings cover the dynamics of domestic violence, trauma informed advocacy and issues concerning safety and protection of children. These trainings are accessed by, and can be tailored to, victim advocates, private therapists, Department of Human Services staff, law enforcement, prosecutors etc. Specialised trainings and resources are also offered concerning such issues as workplace violence, bullying, stalking, elder abuse, abuse of persons with disabilities and perpetrator accountability.

In addition the UDVC hosts a conference which presents an opportunity for a broad base of interested stakeholders to come together to hear about promising practices and national best practices to enhance the safety of victims of violence and their children. In 2011/12 over 300 participants attended this conference.

The UDVC works with a variety of community partners to eliminate domestic violence by addressing cultural oppression and marginalisation to effect social change. There are 33 local domestic violence coalitions located across the state that assist in community prevention and education initiatives supported by the UDVC. Outreach is provided to a variety of underserved communities including refugee communities, polygamist groups, native tribes, LGBTQ and the military among others.

The UDVC and its member programs regularly offer community trainings such as our faith based trainings, trainings concerning the effects of violence on children, dating violence and healthy relationships. Our website has a plethora of resources on the prevention of intimate partner violence and how to remain safe and healthy.

Utah Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System

The Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System (YRBSS) monitors priority health risk behaviors that contribute to the leading causes of death, disability, and social problems among youth and adults in the United States. The Utah YRBSS is conducted every two years and provides data representative of 9th through 12th grade students in public schools throughout Utah.

Figure 7 shows the percentage of students who reported they were hit, slapped, or physically hurt on purpose by their boyfriend or girlfriend during the 12 months before the survey compared to the U.S. There are no significant differences in percentages between Utah and the U.S. from 1999 to 2011.

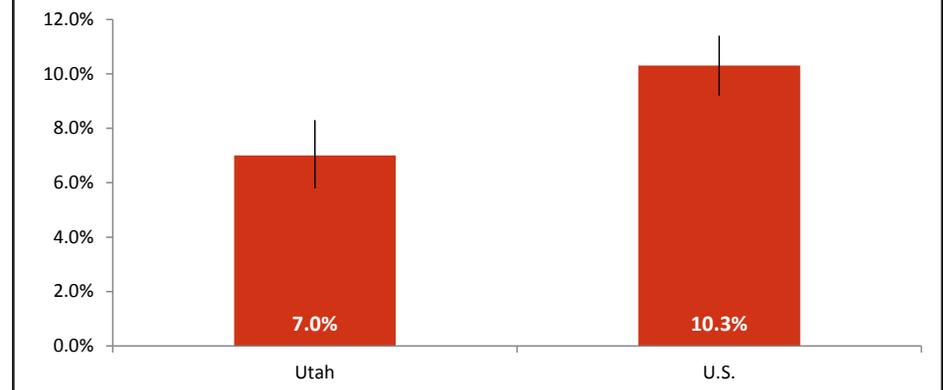

In the 2013 YRBS survey, the question was changed to ask if a student experienced physical dating violence one or more times during the 12 months before the survey, including being hit, slammed into something, or injured with an object or weapon purpose by someone they were dating or going out with. Figure 8 show that Utah students are less likely to report physical dating violence compared to the U.S. prevalence.

In 2013, a question was also asked regarding students experiencing sexual violence one or more times during the 12 months before the survey, including kissing, touching, or being physically forced to have sexual intercourse when they did not want to by someone they were dating or going out. There were no significant difference between Utah (10.8%) and the U.S. (10.4%).

Figure 9 shows the percentage of students who had ever been physically forced to have sexual intercourse when they did not want to during the 12 months before the survey compared to the U.S. There are no significant differences in percentages between Utah and the U.S. from 1999 to 2013.

Child Abuse

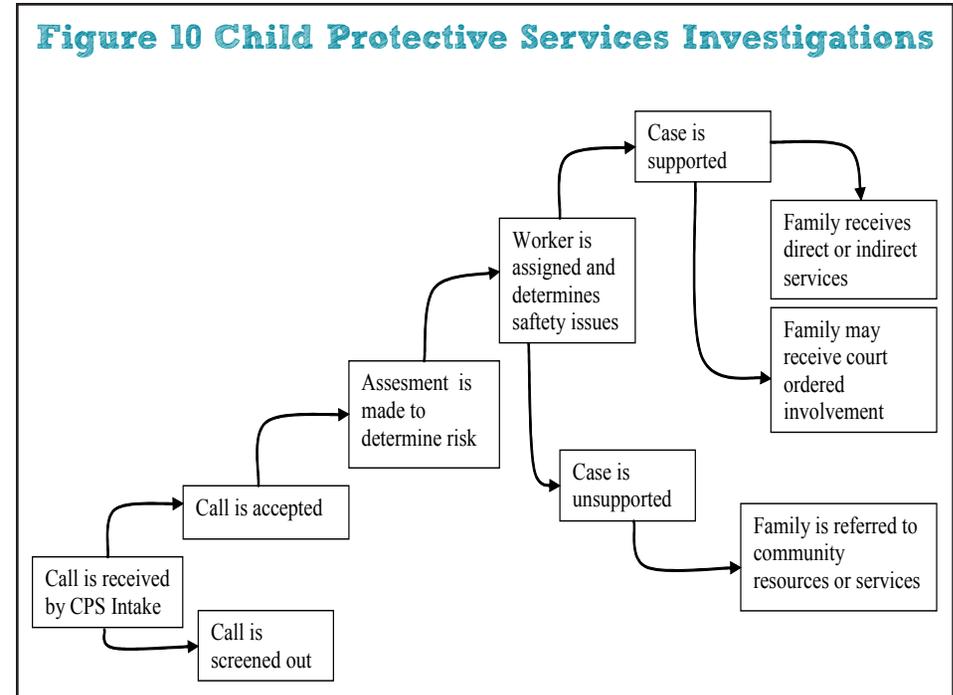

Domestic Violence Related Child Abuse Allegations

Utah recognizes domestic violence in the presence of a child as child abuse. When a domestic violence situation occurs where a child is present, law enforcement is required to contact CPS to report allegations of domestic violence. Calls may come in from the community as well. Although parameters have changed with regard to the types of case that CPS is able to accept, DCFS may still provide referrals to community resources. Figure 10 shows the steps taken during a child protective service investigation.

Trends of Domestic Violence Related CPS Cases Statewide

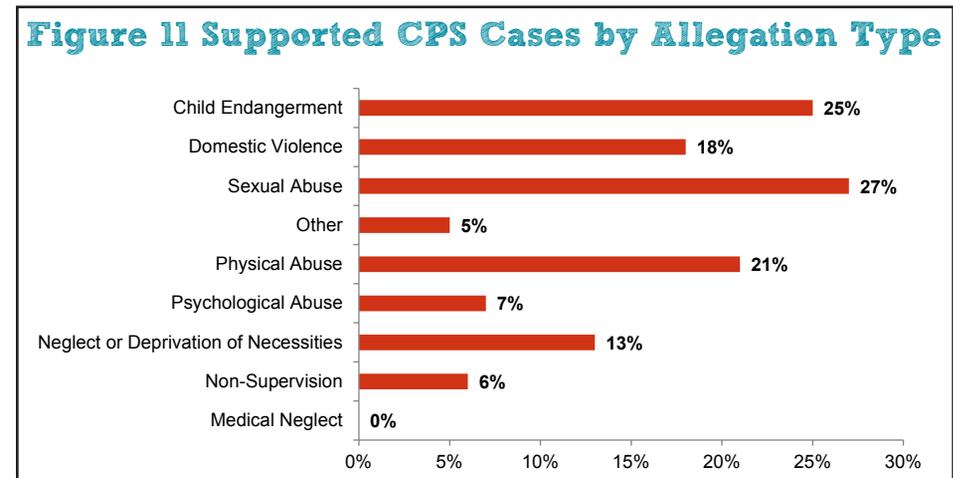

Domestic Violence related child abuse continues to be one of the most frequently supported allegations. One case may have more than one element or supported allegation or include more than one allegation type, victim or perpetrator; therefore, the percentages in Figure 11 add up to more than 100%. For more information and definitions, please see the definitions section of DCFS Practice Guidelines at: www.hspolicy.utah.gov/dcfs/.

Utah's Children's Justice Centers

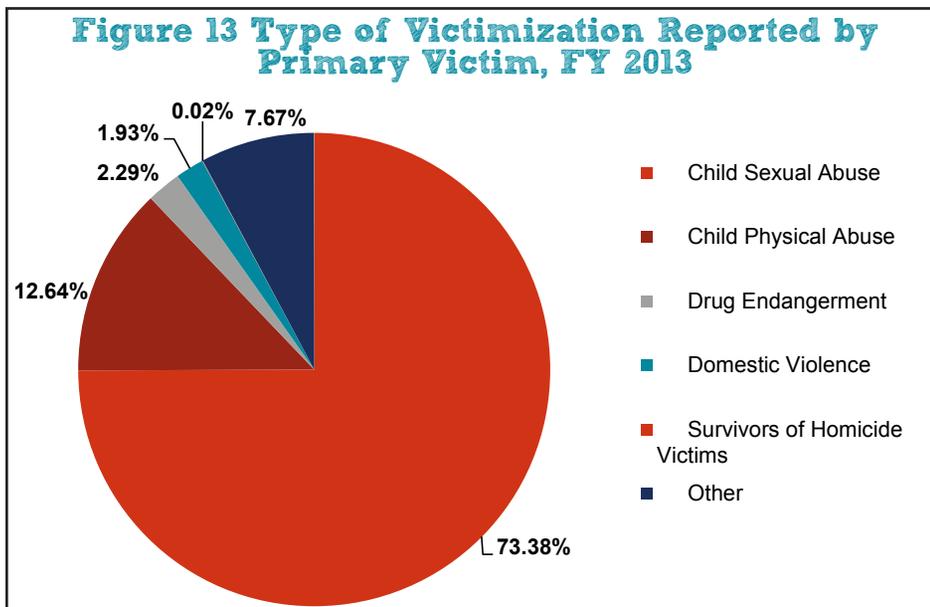

Utah's Children's Justice Centers (CJCs) provide a child-friendly atmosphere designed to help children feel safe and comfortable while they are being interviewed regarding alleged abuse. Specially trained professionals talk to children about the alleged abuse they have experienced. Audio and video equipment is used to preserve the interview for evidence and reduce the need for multiple interviews.

Professionals from several different agencies collaborate on each child's case. This multidisciplinary team approach increases coordination among child protection and criminal justice agencies, allowing them to track a child's progress through the investigation, judicial process, and treatment. In addition to facilitating its multidisciplinary team, each center provides children and families with victim resources and referrals for support services, including medical services and therapy.

There are currently 17 CJCs and 3 CJC satellites in the state. The centers are administered by the Utah Children's Justice Center Program, which is housed in the Utah Attorney General's Office. As public/private partnerships, CJCs are supported by many sources, including state funding, local government funding, federal funding, and private donations. The program contracts with counties for the operation of the CJCs. It also contracts with Primary Children's Medical Center to provide forensic medical exams as needed.

Figure 12 shows the FY 2013 where 5,059 cases were opened, 4,945 interviews were conducted, 919 exams were provided, and 12,756 people received services through Utah's CJCs. The data in Figure 13 shows the percentage of victimization reported by the primary victim.

In 2013, questions regarding Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) were asked of the Utah population 18 years and older. The ACE Study is an ongoing collaboration between the Kaiser Health Plans' Health Appraisal Center and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The objective of the study is to assess the impact of numerous interrelated adverse childhood experiences on a wide variety of health behaviors and outcomes such as violence.

Table 6 shows the prevalence of adverse childhood experiences related to physical, emotional, and sexual abuse. Females were significantly more likely to have experienced a form of sexual abuse as a child compared to males. Thirty six percent of all Utahns 18 years and older experienced emotional abuse as a child and 19.3% experienced physical abuse.

Adverse childhood experiences were grouped into three categories: 0 ACEs, 1-4 ACEs, and 5+ ACEs. Females who report also experiencing IPV during the past 12 months had significantly higher prevalence of reporting five or more ACEs compared to those reporting 0 ACEs and 1-4 ACEs (Figure 17).

Sexual Violence

The 2010 BRFSS included questions regarding sexual violence. This data show that overall, 6.8% of Utahns reported rape or attempted rape in their lifetime. Females reported rape or attempted rape significantly higher than males (Figure 18).

Uniform Crime Reporting Rape Analysis

Data on the offense of rape are collected through the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) system established by the FBI. When using these data, it is important to remember that these summary data only list the most serious offense in a crime incident. Also, according to the FBI's definition of rape, the only offenses included are those where the victim is female. Forcible rape, as defined by UCR, is the carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will. Assaults and attempts to commit rape by force or threat of force are also included; however, statutory rape (without force) and other sex offenses are excluded. These data are compiled from the 2013 Preliminary Report which may change when the final report is published. A total of 895 rapes were reported to Utah police agencies in 2013.

Rape Prevention and Education

The Violence and Injury Prevention Program (VIPP) receives Rape Prevention and Education federal funds for small contracts with community based organizations to provide sexual assault primary prevention programs in their communities. In addition, VIPP established the first statewide crisis resource hotline in the Intermountain West, known as the Sexual Violence Statewide Crisis and Information Line (1-888-421-1100).

Sexual Violence

The Utah Coalition Against Sexual Assault (UCASA) advocates for programs and individuals that are engaged in sexual violence prevention and response in Utah. UCASA provides resources, training and technical support and facilitates the development of multi-disciplinary teams to respond to sexual violence throughout the state. Agencies and individuals served by UCASA include victim advocates, law enforcement, prosecutors, medical professionals, educators, clergy, therapists, rape crisis programs, domestic violence shelters, and university or college campus programs.

Rape Crisis Advocacy Training

UCASA's 40-hour Rape Crisis Advocacy Training provides the required certification for sexual assault counselors to be covered under Utah's Confidential Communications Act. This training is also open to professionals or community members who want to improve their understanding of sexual violence and the impact it has on survivors. In 2012, 200 participants completed UCASA's Rape Crisis Advocacy Training.

Sexual Assault Response Teams (SARTs)

A Sexual Assault Response Team (SART) is a partnership formed between public and private agencies to establish a coordinated response to victims of sexual assault that is victim centered and holds offenders accountable. SARTs ensure consistent, efficient, sensitive, and appropriate services that support victims of sexual violence and promote community safety through the development of protocols and identification of best practices. Each SART model is unique to the communities served. Currently, formalized SARTs are established in twelve Utah counties with several additional counties engaged in SART development. UCASA has partnered with stakeholders in these communities to provide training and technical assistance on SART sustainability, strengthening team skills and facilitating increased collaboration.

Listed below are counties with existing SARTs in various stages of team development and their team coordinators:

Box Elder County	Penny Evans	New Hope Crisis Center
Cache County	Jill Andersen	CAPSA
Davis County	Julie Stephenson	Safe Harbor
Duchesne County	Marci Tucker	Duchesne Victim Advocates
Grand County	Aimee Whipple	Seekhaven
Iron County	Sheena Clark	Canyon Creek
Kane County	Sandy Kerr	Kane County Victim Services
Salt Lake County	Leslie Miller	UCASA
San Juan County	Susan DeLorme	San Juan County Sheriff's Office
Sevier County	Heather DeMille	New Hope Crisis Center
Tooele County	Lynn Smith	Tooele City Police Department
Uintah County	Charles Crane	Northeastern Counseling Center
Utah County	Susan Chasson	UCASA
Washington County	Gabby Rodriguez	Dove Center

Each of these teams is committed to meeting the needs of victims in a manner that is victim centered and trauma informed. The disciplines represented on each team include law enforcement, sexual assault examiners, victim advocates, prosecutors, corrections, and others agencies that serve sexual assault survivors. Teams work to identify the unique strengths and challenges in their communities for meeting the needs of survivors and insuring perpetrator accountability.

When a survivor of sexual assault experiences a compassionate and collaborative response, they are often more likely to seek services and participate in case investigation and prosecution.

Courts

Utah's Court Districts

The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) provides administrative services to Utah's court system, including the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals, and the District Courts. Data used in this section of the report have been provided by the AOC for the District Courts. Table 9 shows the District Courts are divided into 8 geographical regions.

Protective Order Case Filings

Cohabitant abuse case filings are a civil case type where a petition for a protective order is filed. Cohabitant abuse occurs when there is abuse between people who have lived together; are related by blood or marriage; or, have a biological child in common.

The number of cohabitant abuse case filings in 2013 was 4,642 – the lowest number since 2001. Figure 22 shows a decline in cohabitant abuse cases filed between 2002 and 2007, the number of cohabitant abuse cases has leveled out over the past seven years. The data in Table 10 shows the number of cohabitant abuse case filings in 2012 was 4,883, an increase of 0.6% since 2006.

Protective Orders

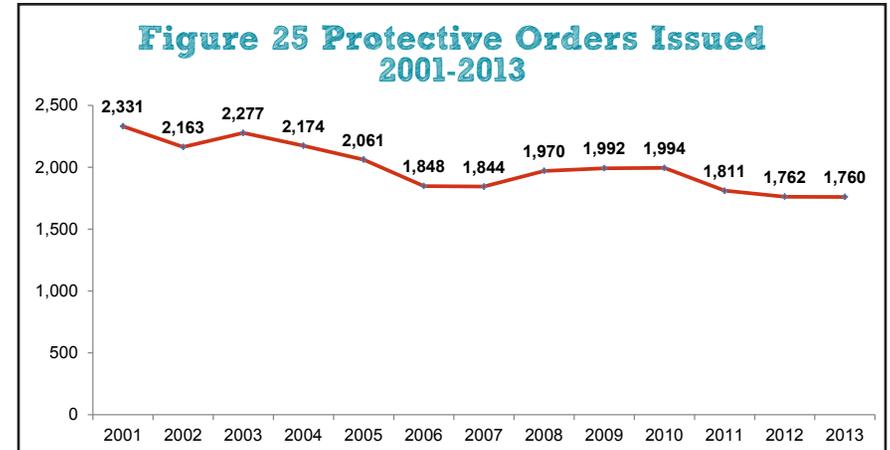

A protective order is designed to provide protection under the law for those affected by domestic violence. Protective orders are also known elsewhere as restraining orders. Protective orders prohibit the alleged abuser from contacting, threatening, or entering onto the property of the abused and other protected parties. A temporary protective order can be issued the day it is requested, without the alleged abuser, known as the respondent, being present. These orders are also referred to as ex parte protective orders. Temporary protective orders are enforceable from the time the respondent is provided a copy, until the hearing on the permanent protective order is held. The respondent is served a copy of the temporary protective order by law enforcement. It orders the respondent to refrain from harming or harassing the petitioner until a court hearing can be held where both the petitioner and respondent may be heard by the judge.

After a court hearing, the court may issue a protective order which includes enforceable criminal provisions that protect the victim for two years. Conditions in these protective orders are specified in Utah Code, Title 78B, Chapter 7 Protective Orders. Figure 24 shows the number of temporary protective orders issued by Utah courts from 2001-2013.

Courts

Figure 25 shows the protective orders issued from 2011-2013. In calendar year 2013, the number of temporary protective orders dropped to the lowest number of orders issued in more than 10 years. The number of protective orders also dropped to its lowest level over the same period. Table 11 shows the number of orders issued in 2013 by court district.

The Utah Legislature passed the Dating Violence Protection Act in the 2013 general legislative session. The Act allows a protective order to be issued between parties who are, or who have been, in a dating relationship that turns abusive. The law went into effect on May 14, 2013. From then to the end of 2013, 66 temporary dating violence and 24 dating violence protective orders were issued.

Criminal Stalking

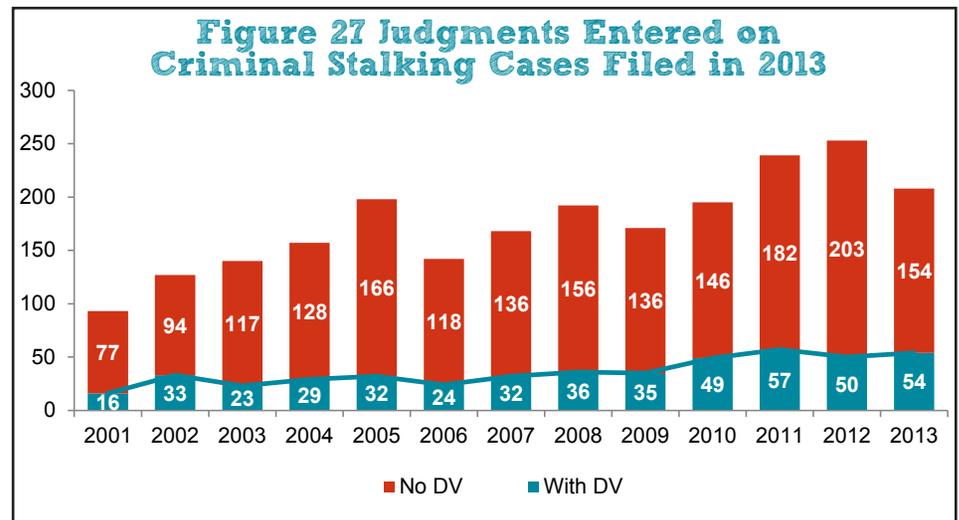

Stalking is generally described as a pattern of conduct directed at a specific person that causes that person to fear for his or her safety, the safety of another, or causes either person to suffer emotional distress.

Table 13 shows the criminal stalking cases filed in 2012 and 2013.

Figure 27 shows the total number of criminal stalking cases filed over the last 13 years. Calendar year 2013 ended an upward trend in criminal stalking cases filed in Utah's courts with an overall decrease of 45 cases over the prior year. The number of stalking cases that involved domestic violence increased by four cases.
